Despair was written in 1932 when Vladimir Nabokov was living in exile in Berlin and it was first serialized as Otchayanie in the émigré review Sovremennye Zapiski in Paris. It was then released in single volume book form by the publishing house Petropolis in Berlin in 1936.

Despair - a tutorial and study guide

In DESPAIR, Hermann commits a shocking crime and then compares his story of that crime, which is the novel DESPAIR, to CRIME AND PUNISHMENT. But since the author is Nabokov, not Dostoyevsky, the tone of DESPAIR features wry and literate hubris, not tortured guilt.

Vladimir Nabokov - Wikipedia

— Vladimir Nabokov, Despair “The pale organisms of literary heroes feeding under the author's supervision swell gradually with the reader's lifeblood; so that the genius of a writer consists in giving them the faculty to adapt themselves to that - not very appetizing - food and thrive on it, sometimes for centuries.”

Despair Quotes by Vladimir Nabokov - Goodreads

Hermann Karlovich is a German Russian who owns a chocolate factory. He meets his doppelgänger, a homeless man named Felix. He stops the man in the street and comments on the fact that they look nearly identical. The homeless man says he doesn't see the resemblance.

Despair Summary | GradeSaver

Savagely funny and hauntingly sad, Lolita is Nabokov's most famous and controversial novel. It is the story of tortured college professor Humbert Humbert and his dangerous obsession with honey-skinned schoolgirl Dolores Haze. 5 out of 5 stars a truly spellbinding and brilliant book
